1. Comment. The units of the 12th Gds Tank Div can still be carried in their quarters in Neuruppin until September. Training was conducted at both the barracks installations and the Storbuck-Güterode post training grounds and in the Walmlieben area west of the training grounds. The new rocket launchers seen at the See Kaserne possibly belong to the 226th Mortar Regt of the division. A small number of these guns were previously seen with other mortar regiments in the Soviet Zone of Germany. The supply officers at the Fridericus Kaserne are known except Kadelnikov (fnu). Units of the division with which they can be identified and which thus can be confirmed in Neuruppin until 19 September 1953 include Unit Lieutenant Colonel Dranov or Dronov (fnu) with the 49th Gds Tank Regt; Unit Lieutenant Colonel Kovalenko (fnu) with the 66th Gds Tank Regt; Unit

Lieutenant Colonel Zadoroshny or Zadorozhni (fnu) with the 71st Gds Hv Tank SP Regt; Kadelnikov (formerly Gds Captain Toropov (fnu) with the 87th (?) Rcn Bn; and Unit Lieutenant Colonel Fukovsky or Bykovski (fnu) with the 48th Gds Tank Regt. The numbered buildings are keyed to a sketch forwarded previously.

2. [] Comment. [] train [] came from Lychen. 25X1
It presumably carried a hospital which transferred from Lychen to Neuruppin.

3. [] Comment. The columns which [] belong to units of the 12th Gds Tank Div possibly moved in connection with the command post exercise which is known from other information.

4. [] 25X1

5. [] Comment. []
[] Gds Lieutenant Colonel Vukalov (fnu) is known as commanding officer of the 48th Gds Tank Regt. Colonel Yurenkov (fnu) was commander of the 12th Gds Tank Div until his reassignment in the spring of 1953. Of the other officers mentioned, only Major Nikitin (fnu) is known from previous reports. See paragraph 12 of the report.
